

Case Files

Case 1: The Stolen Necklace (Shown in video tutorial in activity pack)

Witness: (Height: 1.68) I was invited to an evening at Lord Gretton's house, where I was until about 10pm. As I was leaving to get into my car, out from the shadows a women, who was a little shorter than me, knocked me over, pulled my necklace off my neck and ran off.

Detective: Do you remember anything else?

Witness: She dropped some glasses on the floor that must have fallen off her head. Also, she has a London accent as she shouted "Give that here!"

Culprit:

Case 2: Robbery at the Bakery

Witness: When I came into the shop this morning, someone had stolen the cash from the till and the door was smashed.

Detective: Did you see anyone?

Witness: Yes, just before I arrived this morning, a man was stood by the door and he was carrying a small bag and he ran off when he saw me. I tried to run after him but he was too quick.

Detective: Could you describe the man?

Witness: He was wearing black clothes but I could see a dark beard. As he was running, he was shouting in a German accent. There was also some blood on the glass of the broken door.

Detective: Yes, the police found the blood and it is group B.

Culprit:

Case 3: Garden Damage

Witness: (Height: 1.85m) We woke up yesterday morning, looked out of our window to find lots of damage to our garden at the back of our house. Tables damaged, flowers trampled on and our gazebo pulled down. The summer house window had also been smashed.

Detective: Did you see anything else or anyone the night before around your garden?

Witness: On our security camera, we saw a man walking into our back garden at 2pm. He had a backpack on and dark clothing with a hood but we could tell he had a moustache. He was taller than me because he had to duck under the clothes line, which I never have to do.

Culprit:

Case 4: Stolen Postbox

Witness: We have a postbox, which is concreted into the ground, at the end of our drive. Our postman said he could not deliver letters this morning because the letter box was gone. He saw a man getting into a van before he arrived.

Detective: Did he describe the man?

Witness: Yes, he said he had a beard and got into a van with a numberplate, with a French flag sticker on it. The registration number was not English. There was also some blood on a nail where the postbox had been.

Detective: Yes, the police found the blood and it is group AB.

Culprit:

Case 5: Book Theft from Library

Witness: We have noticed many books going missing each week recently. We have looked back at the video camera footage of people going in and out of the library. We have noticed a lady with a large, baggy coat a lot recently. She does not stay long in the library, a few minutes each time but has been in every day.

Detective: Is there anything else?

Witness: Yes, someone found one of our stolen books, which had been dropped outside and there was some blood on it.

Detective: The blood has been tested and it is group B.

Witness: One more thing, she also had a pieced eyebrow, which we could see on the video.

Culprit:
